From the time she was a young girl, Kathy Gibbons has had memories of a life before this one in which she had already been a big woman and undergone a lifetime of tragic events. As many adults do, she eventually pushed these thoughts to the back of her mind, cast away as figments of a childish imagination. When she was thirty-six, however, the memories came flooding back, emerging into her consciousness with the help of a past-life regression therapist. After seeking help for a series of obstacles in her personal life and career, Gibbons soon learned that Maria, her previous self, was as real as she had seemed in those childhood past life memories and that through understanding Maria's story from the past, she finally would be able to transform her present. This amazing story is a first-hand account of how Gibbons came to discover her past lives and how each played an important role in overcoming present-day obstacles. From Max, the misunderstood French visionary, to Marcus, a fun-loving Irish monk, readers will learn the mystifying true stories behind each of the author's previous incarnations and hopefully become inspired to discover a few of their own. This item ships from La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
